Is the U.S. Blood Supply Tainted?

Despite reports that COVID-19 vaccines cause blood abnormalities, the American Red Cross and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration continue to brush off concerns that the massive vaccine campaign may have contaminated the country's blood supply.

By Children's Health Defense Team

Miss a day, miss a lot. Subscribe to The Defender's Top News of the Day. It's free.

After the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's (FDA's) Emergency Use Authorization (EUA) of COVID-19 vaccines, blood clots were some of the earliest adverse events observed, and abnormal coagulation continues to be one of the most frequent and serious problems reported.

As of mid-September, the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS) — notorious for capturing only a minuscule proportion of adverse events — had received notification of more than 43,000 blood clotting disorders, including acute-onset problems in young children.

Clotting disorders make the blood clot "too easily," generating clots that can travel through the bloodstream and increase the risk of heart attacks and strokes, among other potential complications.

Funeral directors and embalmers in the U.S. and U.K. have gone public with shocking descriptions of highly unusual blood clots in up to 85% of the bodies coming under their care — a "massive increase" compared to pre-COVID-19 vaccine times when ordinary-looking clots might be found in 5% to 10% of the deceased.

"In all my years of embalming, we would run across clots from time to time," said Richard Hirschman, an experienced funeral director in Alabama, "but since May last year [2021], something about the blood has changed. It's not normal. It's drastic."

The rampant clotting and the clots' disturbing sci-fi appearance — "long fibrous entities that can completely block a vein or artery," which Hirschman likens to calamari, rubber bands, spaghetti, worms or parasites — are just some of the concerns prompting questions about blood supply safety.

No 'safety risks?'

About 55% of blood is plasma — which, among other functions, supplies proteins "for blood clotting and immunity" — with the remaining 45% consisting of red blood cells, white blood cells and platelets suspended in the plasma.

Depending on their blood type, individuals who give blood can choose to donate whole blood, plasma or platelets, or they can make a "Power Red" donation (a "concentrated dose" of red blood cells).

The American Red Cross says it will not accept blood from someone whose blood "does not clot normally," but — following guidance from the same branch of the FDA that oversees vaccines — welcomes immediate donations from anyone who received one of the mRNA or other COVID-19 vaccines available in the U.S., as long as the person says he is "symptom-free and feeling well."

The Red Cross claims to be independent but openly celebrates its "special relationship" with the federal government — a relationship that includes periodic appropriations and contracts.

In a recent tweet directed at potential blood transfusion recipients, the Red Cross clarified:

The tweet generated numerous responses from the public accusing the Red Cross of disseminating “misinformation” and directing the organization’s attention to peer-reviewed publications contradicting its languid attitude.

In one of the most alarming studies, published in August in the International Journal of Vaccine Theory, Practice, and Research, Italian surgeons described atypical clumping of red blood cells and the presence of “extraordinarily anomalous structures and substances” of “various shapes and sizes of unclear origin” in over 94% of symptomatic, COVID-19-vaccinated individuals whose blood they examined.

The 1,006 study participants, ranging in age from 15 to 85, received a first (14%), second (45%) or third (41%) dose of a Pfizer or Moderna mRNA vaccine about a month before the analysis of their blood.

Pointing to other studies that found foreign materials in the blood of COVID-19 vaccine recipients and in COVID-19 vaccine vials — materials “that the CDC [Centers for Disease Control and Prevention] and the many promoters of the experimental injections claimed were not in them at all” — the Italian authors concluded the vaccine-induced blood alterations were “likely ... to be involved in producing the coagulation disorders commonly reported after anti-COVID injections.”

Putting the matter even more plainly, they stated:

“[S]uch abrupt changes as we have documented in the peripheral blood profile of 948 patients have never been observed after inoculation by any vaccines in the past according to our clinical experience. The sudden transition ... from a state of perfect normalcy to a pathological one ... is unprecedented. ...

“In our collective experience, and in our shared professional opinion, the large quantity of particles in the blood of mRNA injection recipients is incompatible with normal blood flow especially at the level of the capillaries.”

Another study by Romanian researchers, sent to the Red Cross by the tweeting public, not only reported that Pfizer’s “vaccine-associated synthetic mRNA persists in systemic circulation for at least 2 weeks” but also noted, “extended plasma clearance times compared to estimates presented by mRNA vaccine manufacturers.”

Meanwhile, a case report from Germany presenting autopsy results for a man who died after receiving three “gene-based” COVID-19 vaccine doses (one AstraZeneca, two Pfizer) over a seven-month period conclusively revealed the presence of COVID-19 vaccine spike protein in both brain and heart — and particularly in small blood vessel cells.

These and other studies may be why members of the public like “Mary” incredulously tweeted back to the Red Cross, “Are you kidding? There is proof it enters other body cells like the heart, causing myocarditis; how do you think it gets to the heart from the injection site???”

The FDA has refused to release autopsy results in its possession for people who died following COVID-19 vaccination.

Out, damned clot

As early as May 2021, vaccine researchers were disclosing the “unexpected” entry into the bloodstream of the vaccines’ synthetic spike protein, while other pharmaceutical industry consultants admitted, “Some of the vaccine dose is going to make it into the bloodstream, of course.”

Around the same time, figures like Canadian physician Dr. Charles Hoffe were warning that technologies like CT scans and MRIs, which can identify large blood clots, would not find the “microscopic” clots affecting many of the COVID-19-vaccinated, who might “have no idea they are even having these microscopic blood clots.”

Hoffe was able to ascertain the widespread presence of micro-blood clots in his mRNA-vaccinated patient population using D-dimer tests that look for protein fragments associated with clots.

The Canadian doctor also cautioned that when blood clots damage the brain, spinal cord, heart or lungs, “those tissues ... are permanently damaged.”

A year after these admissions, in May 2022, the FDA finally acknowledged the risk of “potentially life-threatening blood clots” in recipients of the Janssen/Johnson & Johnson (J&J) COVID-19 vaccine.

The European Medicines Agency (EMA) issued similar advisories about AstraZeneca’s COVID-19 vaccine.

Other countries such as India and Denmark admitted to blood clot risks while trying to blame them on “faulty injection technique.”

Neither the FDA nor the EMA said a word about the clotting risks of the more widely used Pfizer and Moderna mRNA COVID-19 shots, even though nearly 7 in 10 (69%) of the clotting disorders reported to VAERS as of mid-September were attributed to Pfizer’s shot, with another 22% linked to Moderna’s and only 9% to the J&J jab.

Although no VAERS reports thus far blame blood clots on the more recently authorized Novavax vaccine, the far-from-traditional nanoparticle concoction not only delivers premade spike proteins — “consistently shown to create clotting issues” — but also residual insect and viral proteins and DNA contaminants.

Large risks from nanoparticles?

Nanoparticle technology is a prominent feature of the two mRNA injections and the Novavax vaccine, and biodistribution of the injected nanoparticles has been a growing cause for concern.

Well before COVID-19, mainstream news outlets alerted the public to nanoparticles’ tendency to “get into the bloodstream and accumulate elsewhere in the body” following oral ingestion — with “unintended effects on cells and organs” — and described how inhaled nanoparticles “work their way through the lungs and into the bloodstream where they can raise the risk of heart attack and stroke.”

On a website for laypeople, the European Commission discloses that nanoparticles “will move with the circulation into all the organs and tissues of the body,” also noting animal model evidence showing “that very small nanoparticles can transfer from a pregnant rat to the fetus.”

In their analysis of vaccinated individuals’ blood, the Italian authors quoted earlier noted their suspicion that some of the foreign materials they detected are “graphene-family particles,” materials that “have been intensively studied by researchers for decades and increasingly so since COVID-19.”

A comprehensive and hardly reassuring 2016 study in Particle and Fibre Toxicology described “toxic side effects” of graphene-family nanomaterials in many biological applications, reporting that they “can induce acute and chronic injuries in tissues by penetrating through the blood-air barrier, blood-testis barrier, blood-brain barrier, and blood-placenta barrier etc.”

That study also noted that long-term toxicity data are lacking.

Many unanswered questions

Recently, a Washington State couple, Cornelia Hertzler and Ron Bly came forward to tell the tragic story of their hospitalized infant son’s death-by-blood-clot last February.

The death occurred two weeks after the hospital administered an unauthorized blood transfusion to the baby, despite claims that, “Patients are free to refuse transfusions for any reason.”

According to the parents, who had clearly articulated their wish to use blood from directed blood donors, the hospital pooh-poohed their concerns and used “random blood” instead.

The infant’s eventually fatal blood clot became evident the very next day, with the clot, by his mother’s account, getting “worse and worse and slowly ... inching closer to his heart.”

Although there is no way to know the COVID-19 vaccination status of those who donated the blood used in the baby’s transfusion, the fact that “most of the nation’s blood supply is now coming from donors who have been inoculated [against COVID-19]” raises many questions.

Existing blood banks may prefer to dismiss those questions as the fevered imaginings of “COVID skeptics” — arguing that requests for blood from unvaccinated donors “would be an operational can of worms for a medically unjustifiable request” — but farsighted entrepreneurs interested in providing such a service might not have to worry about battling for clients.

Wow!!! At some point you would think people at Mainstream Media, our corrupt Politicians, and other supporters of the covid and covid vaccine scam would realize, 'they too' will inevitably become victims of the crimes against humanity being committed... They have helped create a frightening healthcare environment that they, or their loved ones, will eventually need... Personally I consider going to the Doctor one of the most terrifying possibilities I can imagine, but after reading this article it just got worse.

Of course it is if you took the jab...look what's in it. I would not take blood from a vaxxed person so perhaps we should store ours just in case.

I asked my doctor about storing my blood and she said I could do it only if I was scheduled for surgery or knew I would need a blood transfusion.

I'm screwed if I'm in an accident or some emergency occurs that I need blood because I do not want anyone else's blood put into my body.

Anyone is allowed to refuse any blood transfusion at any time - I was scheduled for surgery and during my interview I told the doctor I did not want any blood transfusions. He said that that would not be a problem because he usually only gave the transfusions to "make his patient feel better" anyway. As if there is something comforting about getting a transfusion. - Sorry, but I don't get it. There are alternatives to blood transfusions, IV glucose or saline are called "volume expanders" as they can make up for the lost blood to a point - blood salvage is also available, as you bleed, your blood can be collected and returned to you.

When I was in my 20's I had hemorrhaged .badly with my period and I was told I needed 5 pints of blood. Since I had hardly any blood left, they were unable to correctly type my blood and I was given 5 pints of AB neg although I am really A neg. This mistake could have killed me, however, I did survive (obviously) but for about 6 months after these transfusions I felt as if a battle was going on within my body. I didn't know why at the time, but I did feel like the unease I felt was due to the transfusions. Months later I was donating blood and they informed me that I was A neg, not AB neg. Then I realized why I had felt as I did. I would have been far better off rebuilding my blood with diet rather than getting these transfusions.

This is what happens when you let a wealthy weirdo with no medical experience or degrees, start calling the shots in our health protocol. Also, this is what happens when you allow big pharma to lobby (bribe) members of Congress for approval and distribution of drugs that have only been tested on 8 mice.

No,that is not the problem. The problem is the globalism that owns big pharma, bill gates, all governments, and over 80% of transnational corporations.

They have a plan called the great reset, and the graphen oxide technology is being testing so YOU can be part of the internet of preson, a plan by the W.E.F, the globalist front organization.

They want boiological transmitters in your body to connect with the 6G they will be rolling out soon enough.

Global dligital currency, the metaverse where you can waste your life being nothing but a digital avatar.

We all need to stop being directed to hate on the wrong people. Globalist control credit and debt, so they have unlimited money. the money that is used to control the useful idiots in government , business, and society who work towards the globlaist plan, just so they can get more money, or even just pay on the mortgage.

It is now safe to say that no agency in the govt, health care system, and of course pharma, can ever be trusted again.

Not the CDC, FDA, AMA, the Red Cross, no one with any ties to covid protocols or treatments. Pharma has destroyed it all. single handed

All have proven themselves to be bald faced liars ans flat out criminals

Since the supply isn't segregated unvaxxed to vaxxed, the supply is tainted and spoiled forever.

What's interesting is that they do ask when you give blood whether you've had the Covid vax or not and how long it's been. You're not allowed to donate within a few weeks of receiving a vax. I am unvaxxed and have given blood twice recently so I know all the questions they ask and the data they're gathering. They are lying if they say they don't know whether donated blood is vaxxed or not...they know at the collection point, but they may lose that info. somewhere along the line if blood is combined or whatever else they do in their process.

8 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Peggy Nieto → L P • 2 days ago

Problem is they don't know if the donors are truthful when answering the questions.

I donate blood with the American Red Cross every 8 weeks. I have not been vaccinated but they do have a question on the pre-donation questionnaire, asking if you have had the jab. I do answer that I have not and I'm not turned away. But at the same time, they also accept those who have had the jab. I'm just in hopes that someone who needs blood gets mine and it helps save their life!

11 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

OPleeze → Linda B • 2 days ago

It's funny that they will allow the vaxxed and unvaxxed to donate. Then why do they have to ask in the first place? They are keeping records somewhere. Maybe they keep a database of those of us who are unvaxxed so they can sneak or force a vax on us.

2 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

drw22 → OPleeze • 2 days ago

Maybe the Red Cross is segregating the donated blood of the unvaxxed for use by unvaxxed politicians and the 1%.

My 2 greatest fears when I was in the hospital: vaxxing me without my consent and if I may need a blood transfusion. I stated on the form to receive blood from the unvaxxed only. Of course, they just shrugged their shoulders.

Some entity needs to start an unvaxxed blood bank. Although don't know how you could even trust that that would remain pure unless there is a way to test for and remove spike protein.

Blood supplies have been polluted with donor DNA and bacterial contaminants for several decades. mRNA and nano-sized "adjuncts" can not be filtered or separated from plasma. What's new?

I wouldn't accept a blood transfusion from any donor but myself... The medical community has corrupted itself for over 100 years. They have reduced themselves to ghouls.

My BIL died from AIDS tainted blood he received in 1978. At the time there was no testing for AIDS virus. If the blood is tested for AIDS, why can't it be tested for spike proteins and other components from COVID drugs (It's not a vaccine but an mRNA drug).

Yes, the blood bank is lying if they are saying they do not know if the person is covid 19 vaccinated or not. They do ask when they screen you prior to donation. Also, they test all blood for HIV, hepatitis and syphilis. There are definitely ways to determine natural immunity vs. vaccinated covid 19 antibodies.

The blood supply was not good for a long time. Most people had past infections/childhood shots which may show up in the blood and parasites etc. Natural help/gluten free diet/sunlight etc. is best to prevent health issues and keep a person doing well. Try to be safe to avoid accidents etc.. and have own family maybe donate blood if they didn't get the shot. It is not just the blood supply which may hurt but sex/kissing/getting close to people shedding/mosquitoes and ticks etc. with infections. Just stay as healthy as you can...avoid junk food/avoid chemicals/avoiding gluten may help more nutrients absorb/exercise/ground...touch soil/eating organic/pets/prayer etc..may help.
